HHHS Confirms Negative Results for COVID-19 Testing of Hyland Crest Residents

Hyland Crest Long-Term Care home in Minden declared an outbreak on March 12, 2021 after one staff member tested positive for Covid-19.

Today, Haliburton Highlands Health Services (HHHS) has confirmed that the COVID-19 tests of all residents and remaining staff members at Hyland Crest have tested negative for COVID-19.

This news is shared with a sense of cautious optimism as we know that this testing provides us an early snapshot of the situation and that we must remain extremely vigilant in our infection prevention and control practices. HHHS will continue to closely monitor residents who will remain in isolation for the remainder of the outbreak. Staff members and essential caregivers, who provide important physical and emotional support to long-term care residents, will continue to partake in COVID-19 surveillance testing at increased intervals for the duration of the outbreak.
